Illinois family deployment

Illinois family military leave concerns orders lasting more than 30 days issued by the Governor or President. It can cover a spouse, parent, child or grandparent of the service member while qualifying orders are in effect. The usual service thresholds are 12 months and 1,250 hours in the preceding 12 months. The state definition also addresses independent contractors. For 15 through 50 employees the limit is up to 15 days of unpaid leave. For more than 50 it is up to 30 days. Under the latter provision, deduct the federal qualifying-exigency days already provided for the employee's spouse or child. Count each date once. A request for five or more consecutive workdays needs at least 14 days' advance notice. For a shorter period give practicable advance notice. Consult about scheduling when able. The employer can request military-authority certification. Use accrued vacation, personal, compensatory and other available leave first, apart from sick and disability leave. On the facts provided I request 5 workdays under the Illinois Military Leave Act. The applicable maximum before prior use is 30 days. The recorded unused amount before this request is 30 days.
