Before preparing or serving a formal notice

Confirm who has authority, the premises and occupants, residential or commercial status, the precise lease ground, whether the breach can be corrected, lawful service, and any local, subsidized-housing or other protection. Keep the original evidence and distinguish personal observations from reports. Check for any accommodation obligations before deciding on enforcement. No service, cure deadline, termination or possession demand has been made by producing this worksheet.

California property. For a curable covenant breach, examine Code of Civil Procedure §1161(3), the exact performance required, its possession alternative, and the three-day period excluding Saturdays, Sundays and judicial holidays. A serious nuisance may involve a different ground and counting rule under §1161(4). An ordinary noise report does not establish either ground. Review Civil Code §1946.2 for covered tenancies and any required opportunity to cure before a subsequent notice to quit. Check local protections and the service rules under §1162.
