Virginia activity and injury claims. When Virginia law applies, it does not permit an advance release of a participant's own claim for bodily injury caused by the other party's future negligence. A separately negotiated allocation of a third party's loss is a different question. This instrument grants no indemnity and does not settle existing injuries or property claims. Virginia's equine law distinguishes intrinsic dangers from intentional injury, qualifying safety negligence, and knowingly supplied faulty tack or equipment causing injury. A separate knowing statutory waiver requires notice of intrinsic dangers; a representative signing for a parent must be designated in writing. This acknowledgment does not execute that waiver or give up a claim. Virginia is one of the reported locations.

By signing, the undersigned acknowledges the particular risks identified above. No party releases a negligence claim, promises not to sue, assumes a duty to defend or indemnify another, or surrenders remedies through this acknowledgment.

Treatment, use of a photograph, and any separate permission to participate require their own applicable process. The activity location and the chosen law (VA) may differ. This record does not decide a conflict of laws.
